

WHERE WOULD I BE

The road I traveled on
Ever searching wanting more
Chasing dreams until they're gone
Often hollow at the core

You brought me low so I could see
The truth alive inside of me
The love divine to set me free

If I could make one grain of sand
Lift up the world within my hand
If I could calm down roaring seas
Without your love where would I be

If I could soar across the sky
Live free forever never die
If I could love you more than me
Without your love where would I be

My years rush by so fast
Never pausing slowing down
You keep time within your grasp
Watching over all I've done

You raised me up so I could learn
That from this path is no return
The greater reason I was born

If I could make one grain of sand
Lift up the world within my hand
If I could calm down roaring seas
Without your love where would I be

If I could soar across the sky
Live free forever never die
If I could love you more than me
Without your love where would I be
